FARM HAND DIES FROM INJURIES

Greenfield Oliford Suffers Fracture
of Skull When he is Knocked to Ground by Rail.

ATTEMPTS TO CATCH COLT

In Employ of John Poppoon, Living
North of Raleigh For Over Six Years.

Greenfield Oliford, 58 years old, a farm hand employed by John Poppooon, living north of Raleigh, died
last night at 8:30 o'clock from a fracture of the skull, received while trying to catch a colt early yesterday morning.

The fatal accident occurred about 6:30 o'clock. He had gone to the field after the colt. The colt started to run and Mr. Oliford gave chase.
The yearling jumped a fence and in doing so kicked a rail, which struck Mr. Oliford just above the hip. The force of the blow knocked him to the ground and in falling his head hit
a stone fracturing the skull.

Assistance was rushed to the injured man and he was removed to the Poppoon home. Little hope was expressed for his recovery and he never regained consciousness, passing away at 8:30 o'clock. Mr. Oliford had never married and had been employed at the Poppoon farm for the last six years. He was well known in the northern part of the county and his untimely end was a great shock to his many friends. The accidental was purely accidental and the Poppoon family feel greatly grieved that such should happen on their farm.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow at nine o'clock at the residence. Burial will take place in the Lewisville cemetery.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

Award Contract And Transact Minor
Business Matters.

The regular meeting of the school board was held in J. T. Arbuckle's office last evening with all members present. The contract for painting
the woodwork of the three city
school buildings was awarded to F.
B. Johnson & Company. It was expected that the contract for coal for the coming school year would be let,
but that was not done. Several claims were allowed by the board.

KNIGHTSTOWN HAS NO ICE

Plant Breaks Down and Famine is Narrowly Averted.

The ice machine of Knightstown
Ice Company broke down Sunday night and the small supply of ice on hand was soon exhausted, says the Knightstown Banner. No ice was delivered by the company on Tuesday or Wednesday and ice boxes of the company's customers became bake ovens instead of refrigerators
in the meantime. Workmen have been engaged in repairing the machinery since that time, but it is not in running order yet. Ice was ordered and yesterday the company
succeeded in getting a car load, the most of which was distributed during the day.

Fair tonight and probably Saturday. Moderate temperature.

DUST IS THICK IN SECOND

Merchants Complain of Dirty Condition of the Street.

The merchants in Second street
are complaining of the dirt that blows in their places of business.
Second street has never been swept and is in a very dirty condition. The merchants are demanding that the city clean the street as they do Main.
It will be remembered that Main street went dirty for a long time before being cleaned and it is probable Second will undergo the same course.
The business men have even cleaned
in front of their houses but the city
has never hauled away the dirt.

WILL PROVE HIS ABILITY TO AUDIT

Bob Boyle, I. & C. Traveling Auditor
Will Also Demonstrate His Propensities For Travel.

TO WALK OVER ALL I. & C. LINES

Bob Boyle, traveling auditor of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company, plans to demonstrate his ability as an auditor, and incidentally as a traveler. It is announced at the general offices here that he will walk the distance from Greensburg, where he is now spending his vacation, to Connersville, thus traveling all of the lines of the company
by which he is employed.

Mr. Boyle, as stated above, is a traveler and an auditor. By walking over the warm, warm road he will prove that he is a traveler of no
mean ability and at the same time
he will demonstrate his auditing qualities by counting the ties on the road. That is a little matter of statistics which does not count under the head of his department but he was glad to do that favor for the company. He started from Greensburg today, so it was said at the traction office. He will allow himself no liquid refreshments along the way. That is all hearsay, however.

STREET WORK HELD UP BY BAD WEATHER

Paved Highway is Completed From
the Eastern Terminus to Iron Bridge Near Race.

ROAD MAY BE OPENED SOON

The completion of the street paving in Rushville does not seem much nearer than it did a month ago due to the fact that the work has been held up on account of the inclement weather. The brick has been laid and slushed from the eastern terminus of the street to the iron bridge
a few rods east of the race. It will be ready for opening in a short time.
Work was started this morning laying concrete west of the iron bridge
and it will be completed up to where the brick ends in Second street in a few days. Then the brick will be laid so that the road may be opened as soon as possible. Another force of men is working in West Third street laying the gutters and curbing.

While working in his garden
Charles Veters, a farmer living near Greenfield uncovered the gold wedding ring belonging to Mrs. Veters, which she lost more than twenty-five years ago.

'BIG WEDNESDAY' DATE UNCERTAIN

Merchants Association Votes to Hold Called Meeting Tuesday Night
to Get Expression.

SEASON DATES ARE SUGGESTED

Light Business Settled by Ordering Balance Paid—Three Resolutions Are Adopted.

Only tentative plans for the next "Big Wednesday" were made at the regular meeting of the Rushville Retail Merchants Association in the court house assembly room last evening. It was voted unanimously that a called meeting be held at the same place Tuesday evening, when an effort will be made to get a representative body of business men out
so that their expressions on the bargain day might be had. The opinion was expressed that it was not fair
for a few business men to vote the bargain day on to the business men.
Again it was said that Rushville business men knew, as it was announced
"Big Wednesday" date was to be considered at the last night's meeting and that they should have been present. It was suggested that a series of "Big Wednesday" dates be set and that the days be held according to that schedule and that question will be decided definitely at the meeting Tuesday night.

A number of other important things came up for consideration last evening. The street light question was settled for all time by ordering the payment of the balance due. One member said that he was willing to start a donation for more of the street lights. A complete mailing list to include all of the rural routes of the county again came up for discussion and it was shown that some work had been done by the committee along that line. Resolutions were also ordered to be drawn by the secretary commending the city council,
county council and county commissioners for their part in acquiring the cluster lights.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the street light question was brought up. It was moved by F. E. Wolcott and passed unanimously that an order for $80.45
be drawn on the treasurer of the association to pay the balance due on the street lights. More lights of a similar nature were considered.
That will probably be brought up at another meeting.

Several members of the old Young Men's Commercial Club, who were present, recalled the fact that that organization has a balance of about one hundred dollars in the treasury.
It was suggested that this money be turned over to the business men's organization as it was doing no good lying idly in the bank. A meeting of the defunct organization will be called,
the business settled up, the money
turned over to the new organization
and the charter sent back to the secretary of the State.

H. G. Hackman moved that the next "Big Wednesday" be held July 19, which is one week from next Wednesday. G. P. Hunt thought it would be unfair to boost the day off
on the business men with not a more representative body present. He thought a canvass should be made to determine how many were in favor of the bargain day. He said that two men did all of the work and that he believed it should be divided up.

F. E. Wolcott pointed out that the last night's meeting was advertised
and that business men, if they are interested, should have attended. He said that he believed that the bargain day was the right plan and

SUGGESTS PLAN FOR NEW DEPOT

Rushville Resident Points Out Manner in Which C. H. & D. Station
Might be Acquired.

PETITION THE COMMISSION

Shows That Similar Method Has Been Used by Other Cities—
History of Building.

Acting on petition sent to it
by a list of citizens of Macksville, Ind., the Railroad Commission of Indiana yesterday
ordered the Vandalia Railroad Company to present plans for the erection of a new depot at the Indiana town within the next thirty days. The order was issued at the request of John W. Ratcliffe and others.

The above clipping from an Indianapolis newspaper, together with the following communication was received at the Daily Republican office
this morning:

"To the Editor of the Republican:
"The C. H. & D. depot in Rushville is a disgrace. Now why can not the Merchants Association take the matter in hand and circulate a petition
among her citizens for a new depot
and send the request to the Railway Commission of Indiana. Other towns are doing it right along and getting results. Why not Rushville?"

There is much sound argument in the above letter. The C. H. & D. station has been an eyesore to Rushville for years. The building was not very much of an edifice before it was partially destroyed by the collision
of two engines. It will be remembered that a C. H. & D. engine and a J.
M. & I. engine collided at the point where the two railroads intersect just a few feet west of the building and one of the engines fell over on the building. It was almost demolished at that time. The debris was torn away and the other half of the station was remodeled so that it would stand up.

The idea that is suggested by the letter writer is a good one and would be a commendable work for some Rushville men who have the interest of the city at heart. It is shown by the above clipping that such a plan
is feasible and practical as well as possible. Surely there is no city in the State where such a plan would be advisable as in this case. The C.
H. & D. could well afford to build a new station here even though it be on a small scale. The company is not hampered now by being in the hands of a receiver. The receivership was recently annulled and the company is owned by the B. & O.
even though it is known as the C. H.

And a new site would not be a bad suggestion. There have been rumors that the road planned to build a new station here at the corner of Main
and the railroad and that engineers
have been here to measure off the ground, but it has always been impossible to confirm them.

WHEELS MAKE HIM ILL.

Indianapolis Sun: Item from Rushville says Earl Halterman, sensational pitcher from Moscow (presumably not Russia) is home from Illinois to stay until fall. Last year Halterman quit Wheeling because of homesickness. They don't play ball in the fall, Earl.

Tests in Dublin have shown that the wind will carry disease bacteria
two hundred feet and as high as sixty feet into the air, even when there is a heavy rainfall.

SUFFERS TWO FRACTURES

Carthage Boy Falls and Arm is Twice Broken.

The belated story of an accident at Knightstown in which a Carthage boy was hurt has just reached this city. In his hurry to reach a Fourth of July ball game, Floyd Howland, seventeen years old, attempted to run down the abutment of a bridge
and fell to the water's edge, a distance of twenty feet. His left arm was broken in two places, one just above the wrist and the other just above the elbow. His hip was also badly bruised. The boy has been very unfortunate in that he has been hurt several times previous to this.

BUMPER CORN CROP EXPECTED

Crop Conditions Similar to Those in Rush County Prevail in All Parts of the State.

THE WHEAT YIELD IS VERY LOW

Last night the Indianapolis News
carried dispatches from its special correspondents in all parts of the State concerning the various crops
that are to be harvested this summer and fall. The general report was to the effect that the wheat yield would be low, but that it was of a very high quality as most of it grades number two. This has been the case in Rush county as is gleaned from the reports of what little wheat has already been threshed. In most counties the oats crop will be a failure as it will be in this county, according to all reports. It is expected that it will not be more than half a crop.
The prospects for a bumper corn crop are good. It is expected that the corn will be far above the average if the crop is not injured by un-anticipated drouths from which it is not yet immune. Such conditions prevail all over the State. There were a few exceptions in which the reverse in each case was noted.

DROPS 17 DEGREES IN ONE-HALF HOUR

Mercury Takes Hurried Tumble While Storm That Broke Torrid Spell, Passed Over City.

NO BAD DAMAGE IS REPORTED

For the first time since Sunday Rushville people found relief from the hot and sultry weather this afternoon when cool breezes prevailed
after a lightning and rain storm and after the mercury dropped seventeen degrees in about half an hour. The storm which came from the north and east cooled the atmosphere so that life seemed worth living once more. It seemed that today up until two o'clock came nearer reaching the limit of forbearance than any time
during the torrid period of weather
even though mercury did not stand so high as it did earlier in the week.
The thermometer hovered around ninety degrees until after two o'clock and shortly before three, after the storm had passed over, it had fallen to seventy-three degrees. A very hard rain accompanied the storm.

Reports from over the northern,
eastern and southern parts of the county are to the effect that no damage was done by the storm. At no point was the lightning severe, but in most cases the rain fell in torrents
for some time.

TWO FIRES START FROM LIGHTNING

Mt. Zion U. B. Church is Struck by Bolt and is Reduced to Ashes.

NO INSURANCE IS CARRIED

Barn on Clarence Myers Farm is Also Hit and Burned Down—
Other Storm Damage.

The city of Rushville was threatened with a severe storm cloud in the east and south last evening
shortly after seven o'clock, but the impending storm never came. News
has reached this city to the effect,
however, that serious damage was done in the southern and eastern part of the county, where the cloud
hovered for some time.

The Mt. Zion United Brethren
church was struck by lightning during the storm and later reduced to ashes by fire after the rain had abat-
ed. The church was a frame structure but was not a very old one. The loss has not been exactly estimated
but it is expected that it will reach several hundred dollars. There was no insurance on the structure, which makes it a complete loss.

The edifice which was known as the Mt. Zion church was located four and a half miles southeast of New Salem. The lightning struck the belfry and shattered it. The sparks hovered there and remained alive
until the heavy rain stopped. Fanned by the wind they set the southeast corner of the building on fire
and it was not long before the whole structure was ablaze.

The storm cloud passed over that vicinity about seven o'clock, followed by a heavy rain and dangerous lightning. One particular loud report from the direction of the church
led people in that neighborhood to believe that the house of worship
had been struck, but no more thought was given to it. About ten-thirty o'clock, after the storm had passed over and the rain had stopped, fire
was seen in the church and the alarm was sounded all over that part of the country. People came from every direction but of no avail. The structure was too far gone before the blaze was discovered. Fire fighters managed to save the seats and carpets in the building, but everything else was lost.

The storm was very severe all around New Salem, but no other reports of damage by wind, rain or lightning have been heard here.

The storm was especially severe down near Andersonville. In that neighborhood lightning struck the large barn on the Clarence Myers farm. The structure was fired by the bolt and burned down. The loss will reach several hundred dollars.
It is not known whether or not there
was stock in the barn at the time,
but information is to the effect that there was a large quantity of grain and hay destroyed. A house in Andersonville was struck by lightning, but little damage was done. Several trees in the town were blown down.

It was apparent to Rushville people that the storm was doing damage near Milroy, but word from there today was to the effect that no damage was done. There was only a slight rain.

The storm cloud looked particularly dangerous in the direction of Orange, but the rain did not even fall
there as was the case here.

So perfect an insulator is dry air
that it takes ten thousand volts of electricity to leap a gap of an inch.

Lesson II.—Third Quarter, For July 9, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Isa. lii, 13 to liii, 12—Memory Verses, liii, 4-6—Golden Text, Isa. liii, 6—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Behold my servant, my righteous servant (lii, 13; liii, 11). This is what we must ever and always do in this blessed holy week, which is all written by the Holy Spirit and is forever settled in heaven (I Tim. iii, 16; II Pet. i, 21; Ps. cxix 89). Compare Isa. xlii 1; Matt. xii, 18; Zech. iii, 8. Hear John the Baptist's cry, "Behold the Lamb of God!" and see Him in this lesson described as if Isaiah had been a real witness of His sufferings. I am grateful to some one for calling my attention to the fact that these last twenty-seven chapters of Isaiah are divided into three nines, the first two ending with the statement that there is no peace to the wicked (xlviii, 22; lvi, 21).

The lesson today is the middle portion of the second nine, and if we take the fifteen verses of our lesson as one portion, as we have a right to do, then chapter liii, 5, is the middle verse. What a great fact this is for us to ponder, that the middle verse of the middle chapter of the middle section of the last twenty-seven chapters of this great prophecy tells of His being wounded for our transgressions and that with His stripes we are healed. Here is the heart of the whole Bible and of all history, the one topic of conversation on the part of Moses and Elijah on the mount of transfiguration and the constant refrain of the songs of the redeemed in glory (Luke ix, 31; Rev. v, 9). In I Pet. i, 11, we read that the Spirit of Christ in the prophets testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow, and it was this very topic that He Himself opened up in that walk to Emmaus on the afternoon of the resurrection day (Luke xxiv, 25-27).

At least ten of our lesson verses tell of His sufferings (lii, 14; liii, 2-10).

the others and parts of these tell of His glory. As we read of His marred visage and form we see Him before Calaphas and Pilate in the hands of His enemies. Other verses tell of His lonely life all those thirty years at Nazareth, the ill treatment during the three years of His public ministry and the sufferings of Gethsemane and Golgotha.

This fifty-third chapter may prove to be largely Israel's national confession after they shall have looked upon Him coming in His glory and shall have received Him as their Messiah; but it is also for our individual appropriation now. We can each truthfully say if we are now His redeemed ones. Time was when by me He was despised and rejected, and I esteemed Him not, yet He bore my griefs and carried my sorrows; He was wounded for my transgressions, bruised for my iniquities, and with His stripes I was healed. Like a lost sheep I went astray, seeking only my own way, but the Lord laid on Him all my iniquity.

We are not expected to understand the mystery of His sufferings, but we are expected to believe it all and pleading guilty, receive Him as our personal Saviour. Only thus can the arm of the Lord be revealed to us, for we cannot know His power on our behalf except in Christ Jesus by virtue of His great sacrifice.

In verse 9 note the prediction that His body would be laid in a rich man's tomb, although His enemies would prepare Him a grave as a malefactor, and we know how it all came to pass. Not only did He His own self bare our sins in His own body on the tree, but He also left us an example that we might follow His steps, bearing reproach and suffering as meekly as He did (I Pet. ii, 20-24). This we cannot do till we are redeemed by His precious blood; but then we are taught that it is a great privilege granted unto us to suffer for His sake and to fill up the afflictions which are behind for His body's sake (Phil. i, 29; Col. i, 24).

To be silent before our enemies when falsely accused, when cruelly wronged and ill treated is a great victory and glorifying to God. He suffered shamefully for our sakes and bore it so meekly and patiently. We never can be called upon to suffer as He did, and yet we are so apt to complain when we have the least thing to bear that is disagreeable. We certainly have need of patience (Heb. x, 36; Col. i, 11). See in liii, 10, His resurrection from the dead, for in what other way could one who died prolong his days. See also His future glory in lii, 13-15; liii, 10-12, when He shall be exalted and extolled and shall startle many nations (R. V., margin). He shall see the result of all His sufferings and shall be satisfied. Some one has said that while we wait for that time we should remember that He longs to see of the travail of His soul in us now.

Since the pleasure of the Lord will always prosper in His hand, what can be more desired than to be in His hand for His pleasure (Jer. xviii, 6; Rev. ix, 11). Content to be treated as He was if only we may glorify Him? Note the sayings, "His soul an offering for sin" and "poured out His soul unto death" (liii, 10-12), and may His love so constrain us that we shall be willing to be poured out or cut off or suffer in any way for His sake.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 9, 1911.

Topic.—Lessons from great lives.—VII. David.—I Sam. xvii, 33-51. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, L. D.

The life of David is one of the most interesting and instructive to be found in the Bible. He was the greatest of Israel's kings and the great ancestor of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, who is called the "Son of David." He was attractive in personal appearance, strongly religious in disposition and received his education under the direction of Samuel. His early years were spent in caring for his father's flocks. They were years of close fellowship with God. It was at this time also that he developed the genius for music and poetry that was afterward consecrated in the Psalms. After the incident of the slaying of the giant Goliath he entered upon his varied relations with King Saul, which formed such an important part of his life. David was anointed king three times. The first occasion was by Samuel while he was still a youth in his father's home. In the next place he was anointed king of Judah at Hebron after the death of Saul. Seven and a half years later he was called by the people to reign over the united kingdoms. He died, according to Josephus, at the age of seventy and "was buried in the city of David."

The life of David is well worthy of our study for the useful lesson that it may teach us.

1. The life of David teaches a lesson on trust in God. The one predominant characteristic of David's conflict with Goliath was his humble yet sublime trust in God. Goliath trusted in himself, in the power of his mighty weapons, but David, discarding the coat of mail that Saul put on him, went forth "in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel," whom Goliath had defied. Nor was his trust misplaced. David was confident that it would not be. God had been with him before when he was in danger and had delivered him from the lion and the bear. Since he had been with him in the past David rightly concluded that he would still be with him, especially when the welfare of the nation was at issue. David's trust in God was strong throughout his entire life. His Psalms constantly breathe a spirit of confidence and of trust. In all the perplexing experiences of his life he trusted in the Lord and always found Him faithful. We, too, may have the same confidence in God.

2. The life of David teaches a lesson on friendship. History contains few examples of friendship that equal that which existed between David and Jonathan. Jonathan formed the strongest attachment for David, and his friendship was returned. "The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved David as his own soul." A friend is "another self." Friendship "really seems to consist in loving rather than in being loved. It is wishing a person what we think good for his sake and not for our own and as far as in our power, though exerting ourselves to procure it. And a friend is he who entertains and meets a return of this feeling." Such a conception of friendship was realized between Jonathan and David. Jonathan sacrificed everything for David's interests, and David appreciated and returned his love. Friendship in some degree is necessary in all our lives. In our friendships let us try to manifest the qualities that were embraced in that between Jonathan and David—"appreciation, love, confidence, tenderness, unsuspicious intercourse—with an additional religious element."

3. The life of David teaches a lesson in God's mercy. David was not a perfect man. Yet in his disposition and aspirations he was a man after God's own heart. He sinned most grievously, yet he repented of his sins, and God in His abundant mercy graciously pardoned him. And He is still willing to exercise mercy toward all who have wandered away from Him. The Lord is "plenteous in mercy." "His mercy endureth forever."

About six years ago when living in Vernon, Ky., a member of my family was annoyed by pains across the small of the back and other symptoms of kidney complaint. THE DIFFERENCE.

The Kokomo Dispatch, contrasting the wedding anniversary gift given his wife by a man of means with a love letter written by the man of no means to his wife on a like anniversary makes use of the following, in which a tender chord is struck:

"It is twenty-three years ago to-night since we first met—I only a month or two older than our younger boy and you not much older than our dear Jennie. For twenty-three years we have been closer to each other than to anyone else in the world, and I think we esteem each other more and love one another better than when we first began to love. You are now 'fair, fat and forty,' and to me the mature woman is handsomer and more lovable than the slip of a girl whom twenty-three years ago I met without knowing that my life was to be bound up with hers. We are not rich—so poor just now, in fact, that all I can give you on this anniversary is a little 'love letter'—but there is no one we can afford to envy, and in each other's love we have what no wealth can compensate for. And so let us go on, true and loving, trusting in Him to carry us farther who has brought us so far with so little regret. For twenty-three years you have been mine and I have been yours, and though twenty-three years your husband, I am more than ever—Your Lover."

BOXER FUND INVESTIGATION

Inquiry as to Foster's Connection Therewith Now On.

Washington, July 7.—Having completed its investigation of the Day portrait mystery, the house committee on expenditures in the state department instituted an inquiry into the payment out of the Boxer indemnity fund several years ago of $336,000 on account of the "general war claim," which had been pending for half a century. The committee interest in the payment arises from the fact that former Secretary J. W. Foster, the attorney for the claimants, received 50 per cent of the claim for getting it through, and that the payment was apparently made in an irregular manner out of a fund which it was never intended should be used for that purpose. Thomas Morrison, disbursing clerk of the state department, whose dismissal was recommended by the committee a week ago on account of his connection with the Day portrait mystery, was on the stand. He had been asked to bring with him all vouchers showing payments to Mr. Foster since 1900, but through some misunderstanding, for which the committee took him to task, brought only a few of the documents desired. The committee is convinced that an inquiry into the payment of this large sum out of the Boxer fund will be well worth while.

LOVE OF NATURE.

There is a rapture on the lonely shore;
There is society, where none intrudes,

STANDARD OIL DISSOLUTION

Officers Waiting for Mandate From the Court.

CAN NOT MAKE STATEMENT

Wall Street Thinks the Oil Company Will Soon Announce Its Plan of Reorganization, But Instructions Must Come First From the Court.

New York, July 7.—Wall street has it today that the Standard Oil company is on the point of announcing its plan for the dissolution and reorganization of the corporation in accordance with the decision of the United States supreme court on May 15.

J. A. Moffett, a vice-president, said that the men in charge of the dissolution and reorganization could not very well make any statement until the court has handed down its mandate telling them what they must do. He explained that the decision of the supreme court was in corroboration of the decision of a lower court. That lower court must issue the mandate. He said the mandate will be based on the original decision of that court, and the subsequent minor modifications imposed by the supreme court. "We shall do what the mandate tells us to do, of course," said Moffett. "The general principle of the whole thing will be a distribution of the stocks of the companies which compose the Standard Oil company of New Jersey to the holders of Standard Oil stock. I cannot give you any details, because we have not yet got so far as the details. We have stock in subsidiary companies, a hundred more or less. Well, we've got to give those fellows back their stock, somehow. That's all there is to it."

This much is known about what has been going on at 26 Broadway: The directors have met in almost daily sessions for a month. And John D. Rockefeller himself has been down to the office since. M. F. Elliott, general counsel for the Standard Oil company and presumably the man upon whom the burden of dissolution and reorganization rests, had to go on a vacation on account of ill health.

THE GIRLS GIGGLED

When the Letters of W. E. D. Stokes Were Read In Court.

New York, July 7.—Some of the letters that W. E. D. Stokes expected to get back the night he was shot up by two ladies of the chorus in the Varuna apartment house, were introduced in evidence at the close of the hearing before Magistrate Freschi to determine whether the markswomen, Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, be held to the grand jury for attempted murder. Including a few telegrams, there were a dozen messages that the proprietor of the Ansonia sent to Miss Graham written mostly in 1907.

They were made a part of the court record at the close of an eight-hour session in the Tombs police court in which Mr. Stokes told with considerable dramatic effect his own story of the things that happened to him when he called on the chorus girls on the night of June 7. Occasionally he jumped to his feet with energetic gestures and poses that made the sweat stream down his face. All the while the two girls giggled and tittered and simpered. When Mr. Stokes told the magistrate that Ethel Conrad threatened him with death if he refused to sign a check for $25,000, and added that he replied "If it's a choice between a check for one cent and death, give me death." The young women gurgled with laughter. Stokes looked grimly over their heads and went on with his tale.

Held at Quarantine.

New York, July 7.—The fireman who was taken from the steamship Molke, which arrived from the Mediterranean, has cholera, as a bacteriological examination by Health Officer Doty's experts showed. The ship's cabin passengers were taken to Hoboken. Her steerage passengers and crew will be held for observation aboard the liner at quarantine.

Crowd Was Angered.

Glendive, Mont., July 7.—Angered because Felix Schmidt, a Chicago aviator, would not make a flight at the Fourth of July celebration here, a crowd of spectators seized the biplane and tried to run it into the Yellowstone river. A company of state militia interfered in time to save the machine.

Higher Prices For Ice.

Anderson, Ind., July 7.—Ice manufacturers of this city said there would be no ice famine in this city, but intimated that the consumers may expect an increase in the rate of probably fifty cents to one dollar on the thousand pounds before the end of this week.

Dennis Is Determined.

Columbus, Ind., July 7.—Luther Dennis, Franklin, says he will make the flying machine he brought here for the Fourth fly or burn it in the presence of those who witnessed his four failures.

SULFOSOL

Is the Trade Name for Sulphur in Solution.

The name SULFOSOL should be firmly fixed in the mind of everyone who has or has had Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout or other Blood troubles. Sulphur is regarded by high medical authorities as almost a specific for these troubles. Don't hesitate to tell people about it. Let them ask their doctor if SULFOSOL sulphur in solution—is not the greatest hope of Rheumatism; and above all, let them get SULFOSOL without delay, for they will gladly, after a few days' faithful use, throw away the dangerous, debilitating and stomach wrecking salts, with which they may have been dosing themselves.

SULFOSOL is Nature's gift to that large portion of humanity suffering from Eczema, Rheumatism, Gout and all forms of blood taints and skin diseases. Get SULFOSOL of your nearest druggist or write to Sulphosol Co., 72 Trinity Place, New York, for free book on Rheumatism, Blood and Skin Disease and the successful use of SULFOSOL in their treatment.

HAS NO NEWSPAPER.

Elliott R. Hooten, chief of the new State bureau of inspection, is wondering how he can publish the new inspection law in a county seat which has no newspaper. The law requires the publication of the notices in each county seat in the State but Mr. Hooten has discovered that Vernon, county seat of Jennings county, is without a newspaper.

50,000 FLIES DEAD.

The fly campaign in Hamilton inaugurated by the Republican-News was productive of some good results, if nothing was accomplished but the killing of more than fifty thousand flies; nobody will ever know the exact total.

PORTION OF EAR TORN OFF.

Miss Laura Goyert of Greensburg suffered a very painful injury to her left ear, which may seriously affect the hearing, when a giant fire cracker exploded near her face while she was attending a picnic near St. Paul on the Fourth. The giant cracker tore off a portion of the lobe of her ear. The sound of the explosion is believed to have caused the injury to her hearing.

The Rule of Rowdy.

There is a certain type of human creature, which considers that it can duly impress its intellect on the world, only by public rough-house, consisting of loud and profane talk in public places, the offering of low remarks to women, and general display of more or less drunken savagery.

Ordinarily one looks for that kind of thing in country towns and small cities, where the police have too many friends. The present campaign to check that nuisance in New York city is an illustration that the rowdy is always and ever with us, wherever we happen to live.

In many places he acquires such a dominating force, that it is practically impossible for decent people to travel in peace by train or trolley after 11 o'clock. Trainmen and trolley-men dislike a fight. They would much rather let a rowdy discharge his loud and lewd talk at the passengers, than receive the blows of a man who is drunk enough to be spoiling for a fight.

The real trouble is that the offense known to the law as "disturbance of the peace" is too lightly regarded. In many courts it gets off easily with a $5 and costs sentence. The rowdy considers that the pleasure of exhibiting his hideous soul naked in public places, is worth that and a good deal more.

Tradition places slight condemnation on this offense, because in the old days when our laws were made, people used to go armed, and they were given to personal combat. If a man insulted you, or your women friends in those days, you would pull a pistol on him or remove your coat and deposit him in a mud puddle.

This custom of securing your own personal satisfaction for brutal insults has largely gone by. Public sentiment discourages "gun-toting," as the cause of endless friction and often serious bloodshed. The good citizen has abandoned his rights and habit of personal self-defense to the police and the courts.

These officials should realize the full measure of this responsibility, and that the terrorizing of public streets and conveyances by roughs is a serious damage to any town. Stiff jail sentences and heavy fines should be imposed.

A story from Bloomington, Ind., to the effect that an editor of that city was the first to open an account in the postal savings bank just installed there, (think of it—an editor; a bank account!) is not as improbable as would appear at first blush, says the Columbus Republican. The deposit was of but a single, lonesome misplaced dollar. It is said that when the Bloomington editor, who is but one of a type, expressed a longing to become the initial depositor in Uncle Sam's bank a few tender hearted delinquent subscribers, and a number of other warm personal friends made up the money for him. It is the understanding that the editor's money can not be withdrawn, but must remain on deposit a monument to editorial thrift and governmental security.

Opposition to postal savings banks is found in many places from regular savings institutions. But if people having money are willing to sell the use of it 50 per cent. cheaper, it will help reduce the cost of living.

The newspapers are asked to stop printing suicide news. Yet some people are more fearful of what the newspapers would say about them in this world than of what would happen to them in the other.

If the people who tell about their fly screens and malted milk on the bill boards from Washington to Beverly don't sell some to Mr. Taft this summer, then out door advertising is no good at all.

Mr. Carnegie might have to put an addition on his libraries if he told all he knew about United States Steel.

Ex-Senator Hopkins says jack-potting has always been common in the Illinois Legislature. Like the hotel cloak-room man, legislators instead of receiving a salary will soon be paying for the chance at the tips.

If Mr. Taft is so busy at Washington that he forgets to provide for his family at Beverly, they can at least go down on the beach and dig a mess of clams, and Aunt Delia will know how to cook 'em, too.

Not merely did the court sanction the Southern and Union Pacific merger, but one gang of ruthless monopolists is allowed to operate the two parallel lines of a double track railroad.

The Yale class of '96 brags of its 304 babies, but how many of these Bachelors of Arts can carry one of the kids so as not to hurt its neck, without constant coaching from their wives?

The Senate is actually sitting from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m., or at least you would find some senators by sending a search party through the coat rooms, restaurant, and barber shop.

Whatever may be justice of the suit against the magazines under the anti-trust law, it is evident that the government is making every effort to have all business interests live up to the law regardless of who is hit.

An expert figures that there are 7,226,433 plays possible on the base ball diamond. The bleachers should think of this, and not get grouchy because a fielder takes time to ponder on these alternatives.

The true way to test the fervor of a boy's patriotism, is to see if he is willing to go out of town a mile from any house, and discharge his fire crackers in honor of the nation's birthday.

John L. Sullivan is to retire from the stage, but if he keeps on contributing his classic gems of English prose to the newspapers, the cause of literature is still safe.

Nine hundred degrees were handed out at Harvard, but if we were hiring a new reporter, a man who had taken his degree in the School of Hard Knocks might do quite as well.

Mr. Taft was driven from the golf course by a thunder storm Tuesday, but in justice to him we assume it was not wet so much as difficulty in seeing the ball.

Our envoys and the British are exchanging no end of sugar candy in public, but in private our English cousins keep on saying that Miss America has no manners.

Aviator Sopwith has delivered a package by aeroplane to the steamer Olympic. How a red blooded baggage handler would enjoy delivering trunks in that manner.

Judging by the chorus of "How dry I am" from the troops returning from Texas we judge they walked all the way and that the roads were dusty.

The arbitration treaty with England is nearly ready, but Senate will observe its rights to deposit chesnut burrs beneath the British lion's tail.

Mr. Taft wants the Senate to vote of reciprocity, and after a full line of speeches has been mailed to every voter, they may consent to do so.

The summer resorts are filling up, and one must get his quarters ready for the table waiters, or be relegated to the famine sufferers.

The government is after the alleged magazine trust, and it proposes to stop this restraint of the trade in muck rakes.

Strange aint it, how some people almost get sunstroke in a shady office and then play base ball, tennis or row in the hot sun and never mind it?

And have you heard anything more of that vehicle ordinance being enforced?

New Castle brags that she has no blind tiger. We could easily name some other varieties of animals they have there, though.

They say that if they hold that new directory all summer the population would continue to increase. That stork is tireless.

The watering trough has been installed at the corner of Second and Perkins streets but there is a pile of dirt there that is being strewn all over the street by horses—the careless things!

No, John, that's not some political scheme.

But then that dirt won't hurt Second street very much 'for it long since become immune to such a thing.

Many are the girls who have made a hit with a man, married him and then discovered that, after all, it was only a sacrifice hit. They count in the batting average, though.

A fly swatting day would be no mean idea, but wh'd want to count 'em? The scalp might be delivered in bunches of twenty-five or fifty.

Anyway here's a little ode to the dear fly which we literally swiped. We offer no excuse for it:

Two flies rose up from the city street

With poisonous slime all over their feet;

Into the nursery they made a race

And crawled all over the baby's face.

Three flies flew off from a garbage heap

And over to the table did softly creep;

They danced on the butter and swam in the milk

And washed the filth from their wings of silk.

Four flies flew in through a screenless door

To just look around the grocery store

They tasted the sugar and drank in the can

And wiped their noses on the grocery man.

Five flies flew out of a nasty drain

And started to have some fun again.

They peevd the man with the hairless head,

Then left some germs on the children's bread.

Six flies danced around in some rotten muck,

Their bodies got covered with typhoid truck;

Into the pantry they raced a heat

And cleansed themselves on the family meat.

INVENTS FIRE ETINGUISHER.

(Shelbyville Defocrat.)

Orville E. Gordon, the well known elevator man at Rays Crossing, is arranging to put on the market at an early date a fire extinguishing apparatus which he has just patented and which is expected to take the place of barrels of salt water now kept in mills and elevators for use in case of fire. Insurance men demand that some such safeguard against fire be kept in the mills and elevators and the demand set Mr. Gordon to thinking that something more dependable and convenient than the barrels of water might be arranged, the result being that he has developed an extinguishing apparatus that will fill a long felt want at a reasonable price.

DOG DAYS SEASON IS APPROACHING

Heat and Drouth Causes Streams to

Dry up and Water to Become

Sluggish.

UNFAVORABLE TO SWIMMING

River Should be Avoided Until Rain

Washes Away Accumulated

Germs.

The terrific heat and drouth of the last week has had many unpleasant effects and consequences, one of which is the lowering of the water in the streams. One of the results of this has been to turn bathing places, which before that time ran cool and clear, into lazy pools of greenish water, too warm even to refresh the swimmer. Also quantities of mud and slime have slowly accumulated in many swimming holes that were floored with sand before, and altogether the sport of swimming has been seriously interfered with, and at the same time its safety to health has been lessened.

The belief that swimming in Dog Days, which are supposed to begin July 25, is a menace to health is thought to have originated from the fact that about that season, after the water had been kept warm for many weeks, thus favoring the growth of all sorts of germ life in it, the swimmer really was in danger of contracting some disease, as he splashed about in a literal ocean teeming with micro-organisms. The calendar is not believed to have anything to do with Dog Days, while the sun is thought to have everything to do with it.

Since this summer has so far been one of unusual heat it is believed that the condition of Dog Days, or something very much like it, is here now. In the opinion of a prominent local physician if the boys would forego the pleasure of swimming until a heavy rain falls, washing the old, germ harboring slime out of the streams, they would lessen their chances for some fever or other ailment very decidedly.

CHAPTER II.

In my uncle's large front room there was a safe that he had picked up somewhere in the dark ages of his youth, doubtless upon some fore-closure; and it was one of the simplicities of his complex mind that he should cling to it with the faith which a child reposes in the toy savings bank in which he had deposited his treasure. It was a dogged enough looking contraption, and around it revolved the principal characters and events of this history as a moth circles a flame. Behind the portly doors were kept the integrals of his fortune; the mortgages, leases, deeds and notes that were the material evidences of his possessions. While it was nearly always practically empty of cash, at remote intervals, and for a few days at a time only, it contained considerable sums in specie. This last happened when he would collect the money on a mortgage or other security, and because of not feeling well would receive payment at the house instead of the bank. Once in a long while this would chance to occur after banking hours, or on a Sunday or holiday, and in that event, after the payee had departed, he would give himself over to a revel with the currency with all the delight of a child fondling a new toy. He did not seem to care for gold as the stereotyped miser always does but would nose around among the bundles of greenbacks with the seeming fascination of a feline for catnip. It was during one of these scenes that our quarrel occurred.

I happened to meet Bruce one day at our noon luncheon. It was Saturday afternoon and my work was finished for the week. He came into the place where I sat and dropped heavily into a seat beside me. His appearance caused me to wince upon him. His face was drawn tense as the skin of a drum, his eyes were heavy as though with a great weariness, and his hands aspen in their shakiness. He had the haunted look of a man who has been crushed, soul and body, by some appalling disaster. Marveling at the evil transformation which had come over him, I let my hand fall upon his shaking fingers.

"What is it, Bruce?" I cried sharply. He blotted the perspiration from his face and answered me hoarse as a crow.

"It is all up. They have wiped me out clean as a whistle. Had everything I could rake and scrape on 'System' stock, and she has gone straight to the bottommost pit of inferno. And I was forty thousand to the good and was going to quit forever at fifty thousand and marry Clare." He burst into tears. "And now I can't marry her, for I am ruined, busted, blown up, shot to pieces. If any one should give me an automobile I couldn't raise the wind to fill its tires." His head dropped forward, and wiping his eyes dry he sat with chest heaving. I stared at him.

"How much did it sink?" I asked slowly after a moment. He waved his hands helplessly.

"It didn't sink; it didn't take time to do that. It just plunged, dived, sounded—dropped like a ton of lead in a vacuum. I was wiped out before I could yell 'keno' and crook a finger. Oh, the miserable shame of it! Ass unspeakable! Fool! unmentionable! Idiot! unutterable! Ass! Idiot! Fool!"

Shocked but helpless I surveyed him in silence. Presently his voice arose again, this time angrily.

"But that stock is only temporarily knocked down, and is bound to come up smiling long before the count. It was that damnable published lie that started the panic, and the scare will be over in 24 hours when the truth is known. If I only had $10,000 more I could get back in good shape in no time. But I can't beg, borrow or steal one-tenth of that sum. I'm an alley-dwelling, free-lunch pauper who can't even sell his soul because Old Nick figures he'll get it anyway free gratis. And there's our dear Uncle Abner sitting up there in his den this very minute plowing his fingers and nose through $40,000 of mine he has just collected in currency. I was up to see him in a dying effort to get him to stake me, but he only grinned at me like a totem pole and kept on counting the piles of yellow backs until I wanted to yell and had to run away to get shut of it." He got upon his feet and in his anger banged the table with a metal object which he had tightly clenched in his fist.

"But I've simply got to get ten thousand for a month or two, I tell you, and I'm going to do it." Then suddenly subsiding he turned to me in helpless importunity. "You couldn't spare me anything in the shape of an advance, could you, old man?"

The pathos of the appeal touched me, but I shook my head. "No, Bruce. I can give you nothing to speculate with," I replied quietly. He got up with a despairing shrug of his shoulders, nodded a hurried goodby and was off on what was doubtless some last despairing quest. I saw no good in attempting to detain him and therefore made no effort to call him back.

Thoughts of what he had told me filled my mind to the exclusion of all else. It was bad news, very bad news, indeed, and I knew that Clare would feel it keenly. Loving Bruce as I now knew she did, she would take his troubles deep into her own heart. And it was a miserable shame, too. Forty thousand dollars was a magnificent start along the road to fortune for a man only twenty-eight years old, and it would probably be many years before he could climb that high again. The suddenness of the catastrophe was a distinct shock to me. For an hour I pondered over it deeply, then, arising, took my own departure home-ward.

Uncle Abner was still nosing around among his stacks of currency as I entered. He glanced up at me quickly as I opened the door, then, ignoring me, picked up a thousand dollar bill and began talking to it.

"Look at me, you beauty. Of course you don't know how I got you, but I'm going to tell you. I schemed for you days and laid awake for you nights. I sweat for you and I set traps for you and denied myself for you, and finally I got you. You led me a pretty chase, but in the end I captured you because I had my soul set upon you. And why did I want you? Because you are the concentration of stored energy. All I have to do is turn you loose in the world and sit back in my chair and watch. In a minute a hundred men will jump forth and hammer and saw and toll from morning until night. And the results of all their labor will be mine because while they work for you, you belong to me. I could buy men, women or souls with you—but I won't. I am just going to breed you. I am going to breed you until you get me another like yourself, and then I am going to do it all over again. And you will never get away from me on this earth, either." He turned to me with that disgusting leer of his.

"Not any. And it doesn't look as though I ever would at the price I pay you for second-class board and lodgings." He leaped to his feet in a quivering rage, for the moment made speechless by my unprecedented insolence in daring to resent his insults. But his voice came to him soon enough. Grimacing like a chimpanzee he fairly squealed in his anger.

"Second-class lodgings! You never had enough money in your life to buy a quarter of it. And you never will have, either, you spendthrift. If I didn't charge you for your living you would have just that much more to go to the dogs with. You ought to thank me for it. Second-class board! You will be glad to get a bone to gnaw yet, you puppy." Suddenly he subsided to a sneer and began smoothing my coat over like a prospective buyer of old clothes.

"This suit, how much did it cost you, huh?"

"Fifty dollars."

"And the rest of that trousseau that you wear around in the mud, including the overcoat?"

"I don't know. I never figured it up. Probably seventy-five more."

He sat down with a thump and sat glaring at me as his voice gradually rose again.

"A hundred and twenty-five dollars' worth of dry goods on your back as you strut around the streets! And on your salary!" He popped up like a jack-in-the-box and stood before me, scarecrow-like, with arms outstretched and his clothes hanging in shapeless pouches from his slat-like frame.

"Look at me! This suit cost me nine dollars and I have worn it for a year. My shirt cost 40 cents, my collar six and my necktie eight. Mean to say I am not as well dressed as you?"

"That is a matter of personal opinion. Anyway, it is none of your business so long as I pay you for my living. At any rate I have never had to ask you for money." He reached forward with his long arm and began thumping me on the chest with his bony knuckles.

"Hey! Wouldn't you, though if you thought you could get it? Wouldn't you, though, Mr. Peacock, with your fine clothes, if you thought you could wheedle a dollar out of me? But you know your Uncle Abner ain't fool enough to let you have it. I'd rather trust it to Bruce, for with all his foolishness he has got twice the sense that you have. He takes chances and some day may win a fortune, while you only spend, spend, spend. Get a cent from me! I'd like to see you." With a quick run he gathered up the money, shoved it into the safe, spun the combination until it rattled like a roulette wheel and faced me again with his nose wrinkled. I faced him in a boiling rage. For while I had always cherished the natural and legitimate hope that I, as his next of kin, might some day profit by reason of his accumulative instincts, he could have left his money strewn broadcast throughout the house from the time I had first come to live with him and I would not have touched a dollar of it, even had I known I never would be even suspected. Furthermore, none had a better reputation for honesty than myself, and his everlasting treatment of me as a potential thief had always nauseated me. Not caring how he might regard the act, I drew the key to the front door from my pocket and flung it on the table before him. It was the only key to the house I had ever possessed and its surrender left me without means of entrance, but without another word I stalked out into the open, banging the door behind me. Never had I been in a more villainous mood than now as I strode through the trees on my way downtown.

I desired to see Bruce again. I was concerned to know just what turn his despondency might take, and I thought that I might cheer him up a bit. Knowing his usual place of habitat in his hours of recreation it was not long before I had located him. He was humped up buzzard-like in a semi-private room of a cafe, his hands sounding the depths of his pockets and his chin resting upon his breast. A cocktail, apparently untasted, stood on the table before him. I sat down on the other side of the board, noticing that his eyes were closed.

He had the general appearance of a man who had been drinking. Ordinarily immaculate of person, he was now semi-disreputable. He had not shaved that day, his necktie was disarranged and his hair rumpled. However, as I had never known him to be the worse for liquor, I was inclined to give him the benefit of the doubt in this case and ascribe his unkemptness to brooding over his misfortune. "Bruce," I said after a moment.

He opened his eyes and looked at me vacantly, but made no reply. In a general way I attempted to console him, but he only shook his head in silence, and finding my efforts unrewarded I finally abandoned them. Ordering a mild decoction for myself, I touched his glass and drank to the hope that better times might soon be on the wing. He emptied his glass without reply, and sank back into his dejected posture. Five minutes later he seemed to be half asleep, and I determined to take him bodily in hand. Not wishing to have him seen in that condition by any friends who might chance to enter, I shook him into a semblance of life. Then making him take my arm, I assisted him into the open air. Darkness had already fallen and the lights of the skyscrapers were beginning to sparkle. He lurched heavily against me, and seeing that his condition was rapidly becoming hopeless, I signaled a cab, opened the door and thrust him inside. He fell upon the seat, muttering some address to which he wished to be taken and I turned to the jehu who was propping him up.

"He will be all right in a couple of hours. At present he is not feeling particularly well and should be taken care of," I said significantly. The other nodded his understanding. Then with brief instructions for him to handle his charge right side up with care, I turned away as he picked up the reins.

JOHN W. GATES

Illness Has Assumed Alarming Proportions.

CONDITION IS SERIOUS

John W. Gates, American Financier, Is Sinking Rapidly.

Paris, July 7.—The condition of John W. Gates is extremely serious. He passed the day in a comatose condition, and it now seems likely that his son, Charles, who is on board the Mauretania hurrying to Europe, will not reach Paris in time. Mr. Gates went to London to put through the deal with Lord Cawdray with regard to the Pearson interests in Mexico at a time when he should have remained in Paris for the operation that he was told was necessary for the removal of a tumor. Since he returned from London, Dr. Doyen has performed seven slight operations for the removal of the tumor which in itself was an almost harmless growth of a non-cancerous nature that was situated in his throat. But coupled with a severe attack of kidney and liver trouble, the patient's condition has become alarmingly grave.

RUMORS ARE RIFE OF REVOLUTION

Cubans Getting Restless On Graft Talk.

Havana, July 7.—Rumors are rife of revolutionary conspiracies in the provinces of Pinar del Rio and Santiago. The government denies the rumors, but there is unwonted activity among the rurales guard. The agitation is chiefly the result of newspaper allegations that Gomez has grafted millions since he became president. Gomez, replying to the accusations, has published an open letter declaring that he owned property before his election, which does not accord with the fact that in 1906, he made himself proof against judgments by declaring that his debts amounted to $89,000.

All opposing papers declare that a revolution is imminent, while the administration organs, and El Mundo, the independent, declare that there is no danger. At the same time they assure the Cubans to support the government and save the country.

Without Rudder Or Crew.

Berlin, July 7.—Experiments which have been going on for several days with a rudderless, crewless motor boat on Lake Wannsee have proved to be remarkably successful. The boat was towed out two miles in the lake and her movements afterward were done altogether by means of wireless apparatus ashore. The boat threaded her way unerringly through numerous craft without the slightest accident. The inventor of the crewless boat is a school-teacher named Christian Wirth.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

A rumor has been started that another revolution in Mexico is probable.

King Albert has received the American and other delegates to the International iron and steel congress at Brussels.

Friends of Mrs. C. P. Huntington in New York have been much distressed by news of her severe illness which keeps her in her residence.

Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, now in London, has signed an agreement to meet Bill Lang at Sydney, N. S. W., on Easter Monday, 1912.

Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, gave a reception at London in honor of the delegates to the international congress of naval architects.

Miss Nora Davis, sister of Richard Harding Davis, was married to Rev. F. Percival Farrar, rector of Sandringham, and domestic chaplain to the king, at London.

A Spanish detachment is camped near Arzila, where it was reported that the Germans had landed. It is reported that a Moorish force commanded by French officers has arrived at Alcazar.

Where Is the Cheap Meat?

By F. G. King

F. G. King, Animal Husbandry Department Experiment Station.

Cheap meat is found on every steer and it is also good meat when properly prepared. The higher priced cuts of a steer are more easily prepared in a palatable form but are no more nutritious than are the lower priced cuts when the latter have been thoroughly and properly cooked. Until the high price of meat caused more attention to be paid to the matter, there was somewhat of a prejudice in some localities against using anything in the way of cheap cuts of meat. The increase in cost of meat within the last few years has, however, caused a change in this adverse sentiment and has increased the knowledge of preparation of the cheaper cuts for the table until at present there is a much more general use of these kinds of meat than formerly.

The higher priced cuts are made so principally because they are juicier and more tender and hence more readily made palatable. This is especially true of the loin and ribs, the lean portion of which consists of muscles that are used very little by the animal and therefore lacking in the development that causes them to become tough and to lack flavor. The rounds are comparatively high priced because there is little waste from bone and from excessive fat. The lean is not as tender as that of the loins and ribs but there is a greater per cent of lean to the entire weight of the cut. Although the cheaper cuts of meat are meeting with more favor at present than formerly the loin, rib, and rounds will continue to be the highest priced cuts of meat and the steer that furnishes the highest per cent of these parts will ever be the steer that sells for the highest price. The feeder and breeder, especially the latter must lay great emphasis on wide straight back and well developed hind quarters, because those parts are the ones that the butcher sells for the highest price and the ones for which he will pay the most money.

WOMAN IS ALWAYS SERENE IN TORRID WEATHER.

The peculiar thing about the torrid weather we are having is the effect it produces upon the mind of sweltering humanity. Take mere man, for instance. No matter how serene and forbearing he may ordinarily be toward his fellow men, when the thermometer registers 90 degrees he is just the antithesis of congeniality. The weather becomes his constant topic, and in no uncertain language he deprecates the general arrangement of things, returning snappish replies to civil queries and keeping everybody around him in a state of anxiety as to his sanity.

Here comes a man down the street, his coat thrown carelessly over his arm, hat in hand and mopping his feverish brow—the picture of despair and discomfort. He is no mood to be joked with. Never try it, for he is in agony because of the heat, and he wants everybody to know about it. "Everyday is a perfect day" may be a good old adage, but do not try to convince this sufferer that he could not improve on the same.

Not so with women. Station yourself at a point on any prominent street some warm day, and you will listen for complaints against the weather from her in vain. Style forbids a woman to dress as comfortably as a man, but under a sizzling sun the powder on her face is rarely interfered with. She strolls along, laughing merrily, and if she ever thinks at all of the stifling atmosphere she seldom remarks upon it. And then only to say: "Why, isn't this a perfectly lovely day?"

Go into almost any office and you will see a sweltering employer dictating to a stenographer who is as cool as the proverbial cucumber.

Is there something in the heat that upsets a man's reason, or is he just prone to forever complain of anything that affects his personal comfort. A mere man, however, offers a solution of the tranquility of women under these most trying conditions. He declares that woman never gets her mind off that "dream of creation" she saw at the modist's long enough to think of her personal comfort.

California Senator Made a Notable Speech.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TALK

In a Notable Speech in the Senate the California Senator Spoke in Opposition to the Owen Bill Proposing Department of Public Health.

Washington, July 7.—The feature of the senate session yesterday was a speech by Senator Works of California in opposition to the Owen bill creating a department of public health. Senator Works avowed himself a believer in the efficacy of Christian Science healing, and declared that he and his wife had been cured of illness after doctors had failed, and that his son had also been cured of the drink habit by the same treatment. The speech made a profound impression.

Senator Gronna, of North Dakota, spoke for three hours in opposition to the Canadian reciprocity bill, and had not concluded when adjournment was taken.

In reply to a question from Mr. Cummins as to the fate of his resolution calling on the monetary commission for a final report not later than Dec. 1, and the disbandment of the commission, Senator Penrose, chairman of the finance commission, stated that he would call a meeting of his committee next week and make a report on the resolution.

Senator Warren, chairman of the committee on appropriations, reported the deficiency bill carrying $213,031, an increase over the house bill of $181,000, of which $150,000 was for improvements at Ft. Mason, Cal. An order was issued to all senators to be present hereafter at the daily session after the opponents of Canadian reciprocity had announced that they would insist on a quorum.

FIERCE POLITICAL FIGHT

Mississippi Candidate Badly Injured in a Mix-Up.

Jackson, Miss., July 7.—State Senator Theodore Bilbo, who is a candidate for lieutenant-governor on the Vardaman ticket, was beaten into insensibility on a train at Parkville by John Henry, general agent of the New Orleans, Mobile & Chicago road. Henry demanded apologies for nasty remarks Bilbo had made about him in his speeches. Bilbo declined and Henry pounded his head and face into a jelly with his pistol. He fractured his skull and the surgeons think he will die. Political feeling has been intense for months, Bilbo a Vardaman champion, being bitter in his denunciations of all who disagree with him.

Injured in Auto Accident.

Danville, Ill., July 7.—Clella Black and her sister, Bessie, of this city, and Ira Mott and Frank Craddock, of Sidell, Ill., were severely injured in an automobile accident near Covington, Ind. The machine in which they were riding went over an embankment. Miss Black's leg was broken, and it is feared she was internally hurt. The others were not so seriously injured.

Will Continue Flight.

Atlantic City, July 7.—Harry Atwood announced today that he would leave here late this afternoon if weather conditions permitted, to fly to Washington. He will shape his course from here to Wilmington, thence to the head of the Chesapeake, to be then shot across to Washington.

GAVE THE BEARS CHUNKS OF ICE

Visitor at Bronx Zoo Made Timely Suggestion.

New York, July 7.—A quiet, modestly attired man of middle age, standing by the polar bear cage at the Bronx zoo, suddenly riveted his attention upon Silver King, the gigantic beast brought down from the Arctic and presented to the city by Paul Rainey. "Got to do something for old white-sides there, and do it pretty quick," said the quiet man to an attendant.

"Say, are you running this zoo, or who is?" came the reply.

"No, I'm not running it," answered the visitor, "but if I were I'd not lose that beautiful bear just through ignorance."

"What do you know about polar bears?"

"Nothing much, maybe, except that I've wintered among them and summered among them, too," came the explanation. "My name is Malone, and I was Admiral Peary's engineer when he reached the pole. Now if you will break up a ton of ice and put it in the bear's wallow you'll—"

But the attendant had gone away from there, propelled by the disclosure of the visitor's identity, and the appearance of Curator Ditmar, who greeted Mr. Malone effusively, and welcomed his suggestion for the care of the animals. Within an hour immense blocks of ice had been cracked and put in the cage pools, and ice water and iced baths had been provided for the musk oxen.

BUMPER CROP FOR INDIANA

If Rainfall Is Normal Corn Will Hump.

PROSPECTS NEVER BETTER

Notwithstanding the Dry Weather Recently, the Corn Crop Will Yield Big Returns if the Drouth Does Not Continue.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 7.—If the rainfall in Indiana within the next eight or ten days is normal there will be a bumper crop of corn; if the drought continues the crop may fall below the average. This is the tenor of reports received from over the state.

The wheat crop has been harvested and much of it threshed. The yield varies from ten to thirty bushels to the acre, and the average is fifteen or sixteen bushels. The quality of the grain, as shown by tests, never averaged a higher grade, most of it being classed as No. 2. In a few counties rust, smut and the fly damaged wheat, but taken generally over the state, the crop averages well with former years.

Of all the cereals grown in Indiana oats promises the poorest crop. In some counties the crop is only one-third the average, and in others half the average.

The pea pack was small, owing to a partial failure of the crop. Cannons are anxious about tomatoes and sweet corn, but hope for rain.

Campbell tried to take some papers away from Haynes, who struck him in the mouth and eye. Before Campbell could retaliate, a deputy sheriff separated the men, but they were not arrested.

should be carried out.

Russell Casady said that he saw no reason why "Big Wednesday" should not be continued. He declared that it brought crowds, brought business to the merchants and helped the city. He pointed out that the bargain day is always better than Saturday for crowds. At that point it was voted to call a meeting for Tuesday night to get an expression on the bargain day.

Floyd Hogsett thought that a committee should be appointed to visit the business men and learn whether or not they wanted a bargain day. It was suggested that the assistant secretary put that question when she collected the monthly dues and also call attention to the called meeting. She started out with a paper this morning to learn how many are in favor of the bargain day.

Ralph Payne asked if the committee appointed to get the rural route mailing list had been at work. F. E. Wolcott reported that the committee had one route and had another promised. The routes out of Rushville have already been acquired. It is planned to make a card system out of the mailing list which will be accessible to any member of the association and which will be arranged so that any family may be transferred to another route when it moves.

When no member responded to the call by the president for a few remarks for the good of the association, Mr. Schriebe launched out on a short talk concerning Rushville in which he expressed some views that are worthy of consideration.

"It is surprising, very surprising," he declared, "what Rushville has done in the last year. There is no city of this class in the State that has accomplished so much. Think of the sum of $2,978.75. This association gave that to the public. They gave it for the good of the city of Rushville, for the public's welfare. We can't say that any member of the association who so liberally donated for the improvement is deriving any great benefit from the improvement. At least not any more than the public at large is deriving, but still the merchants paid the bill and presented the improvement to the city. We should be thankful that we have such a city council, county board of commissioners and county council, for without their assistance, the lights would never have been installed.

"Even if this association has done nothing more in all its life, it has accomplished much in acquiring the cluster lights. I doubt if we would have had these brick streets today had it not been for this association which prevailed on the commissioners to change the bond issue so that it would be possible to build the streets.

"See how other cities have grown. Far instance, Detroit, a little insignificant city up there on the lakes at one time, in one year drew three million dollars worth of capital from St. Louis. No one merchant in Detroit did that, but the organized business men did it. Today they have the best organized business men's association in the United States.

"So we need to broaden out and work together. We need to think of others as well as ourselves. We need to think of Rushville and make her grow by landing a factory now and then. I do not believe in a boom town, but one with a slow and steady growth. It is in that phase of the question that big cities have gained. We need to co-operate. A little selfish man with only selfish ends in view can accomplish only little things so let's all get big and charitable."

Will Feudner pointed out that the city had been growing a little at any rate, even though it was slow, since the Jacksonian directory count showed a population of 5,716, while the last census gave the city only 4927.

F. E. Wolcott moved and it was passed unanimously that three copies of resolutions be drafted by the secretary, commending the city council, county council and county commissioners for their part in the work of obtaining the cluster lights; that a copy be mailed to each of those bodies and that they be made a part of the record.

Before the meeting closed "Big Wednesday" was again brought up when H. G. Hackman asked for suggestions on some plan to attract merchants and members to the meetings. It was pointed out that committees should do the work incident to the bargain day and that one or two men should not have all of the burden on their shoulders. President Schriebe said that he would attend to that so that the work would not be so heavy when the work of preparing for the next bargain day was started. G. P. Hunt said that he did not care to be misquoted on the "Big Wednesday" question as he was heartily in favor of the bargain day and believed it was helpful.

Ralph Payne suggested that the series of dates for "Big Wednesday" be set and then the bargain days would be assured without the trouble of fixing a date each time. He said that there was no doubt but what Will Bliss and G. P. Hunt got the short end the last time, that they deserved much credit and that the day would not have been pushed had it not been for their tireless industry.

The following is a sample of the resolutions which will be sent to the three bodies who materially assisted with the cluster lights:

Whereas, Rushville now has in operation in the downtown business streets cluster sidewalk lights that are the pride of the business men and the citizens of Rushville and Rush county in general, and

Whereas, the members of the Rushville Business Men's Association desire to express their appreciation for the assistance of the city council in making the lights a success, therefore be it

Resolved, that the members of the Rushville Business Men's Association do hereby express their appreciation and sincere thanks to said Honorable City Council for their loyal assistance in establishing and maintaining said cluster lights, through which our city is receiving many words of praise from the traveling public and from the business men of the nearby cities, as well as the good will and appreciation of the citizens of Rushville and Rush county; be it further

Resolved, that this resolution be entered of record on the minutes of said Rushville Business Men's Association.

Farmers Take Notice

It is being reported we will not be able to take in wheat on account of the work that is being done on Third street. We wish to say that this is a mistake, as the street is not torn up in front of our mill yet, and even when they do get to work on it, we have made arrangements, so that we can take care of your trade as usual, so when you start moving your wheat, don't forget us, as we will appreciate your patronage, and assure you the very best of treatment.
